Igniting a Spark – Introducing Students to Port Careers

Dianne Ciceron spends her days interacting with travelers over Seattle-Tacoma International Airport's (SEA) digital channels to help them have a smooth journey through the airport. Working on SEA's Customer Care team, she is used to a fast-paced, unpredictable, and at times, chaotic environment and thinking outside the box to solve problems. When she was asked to share her career journey with a classroom of seventh graders, she was a little nervous but jumped at the chance. Thinking on her feet is all in a day's work. Ciceron and other Port of Seattle staff participated in Highline Public Schools' Career Exploration Days this spring, which brought in representatives from a variety of industries to introduce seventh-grade students to different careers.
